THE BLACK HOLE OF NEW YORK. Men Retting in the Polsoned Dungeons, and the District Attorney Unaware of their Existence-Another Life Saved-The Grand Jury's Timely Escape.

The cells in the Tombs were not so wet yesterday as on Wednesday. The soft snow had coaked through the walls, but the water had been dried up by the fires and mild weather. Spurred by the Sun's exposures, the Commis-sioners of Charities and Correction were early

In the prison yesterday, and they also sent an inspector to make an investigation. The Grand Jury also visited the stone sycophagus, but it was not until after 12 o'clock, at which hour they were discharged. The Grand Jury's visit, they were discharged. The Grand Jury's visit, therefore, was unofficial, and will result in no effort to mitigate the sufferings or decrease the mortality of the inmates.

In describing the horrors of the city prison, the Sux reporter has been influenced by motives of humanity only, and has neither made nor meant any reflections upon the commissioners or keepers who have charge of the Tombs. Warden Johnson strains every nerve to make the prison as clean and comfortable as the surroundings will admit, and he is ably assisted by his subordinates, from whom he exacts strict attention to their duties.

No accusation of neglect can be justly made against the Commissioners, for neither they nor their agents can make the Centre street peat house a prison fit for the confinement of human beings. These gentlemen have an erroneous impression that a condemnation of the Tombs is a condemnation of themselves, and acting under this delusion they were happy yesterday to point out the wretched cells designated in The Sun, and say, "They are not so bad as represented."

But they neglected to add that Thursday was stormy, while yesterday was dry and warm. The jurymen did not view one-third of the cells before they became disgusted. Then, fearing longer to risk their lives in the vast sepulchre they guilt it, expressing the opinion that it is unfit for use.

Heary Wilson wat arrested on the 21st for having stolen goods in his possession. Wilson dis-longer to risk their lives in the vast sepulcire they quit it, expressing the opinion that it is unfit for use.

Henry Wilson was arrested on the 21st for having stolen goods in his possession. Wilson dislikes the Tombs. One week's confinement there convinced him it was not a healthy retreat. Having a desire to live a few months longer he yesterday escaped from his keeper while being taken to court. When his cell-mates heard of it they exclaimed: "One life saved, anyhow!"

Mr. Allen, chief clerk in the District Attorney's office, says there are but twenty-one prisoners in the Tomba-who are awaiting trial in the General Sessions, and that five of this number were committed yesterday. There are 387 prisoners confined in the dungeons. Will the authorities give the public information about the remaining 3667. The SUN will tell them of two cases in point, as follows: A few days ago Counsellor W. F. Kintzing went into the District Attorney's office and said that one Bernestein had been a prisoner since last September. He sked to have the case looked into. An officer who was sent for Bernestein returned with the intelligence that no such man was in the Tombs. A second search discovered the prisoner in a cell on the top tier. He had been there so long that he had been forgotten even by the keepers. When taken before the court he was discharged, as there was not a shadow of testimony upon which to hold him.

Yesterday's Sun mentioned the case of Francisco Martin. He was committed in August last for shooting his wife. Mrs. Martin recovered and went out two months ago. An examination of the calendar in the District Attorney's office was made yesterday, but the name of Francisco Martin was not found. Indeed, the papers have never been sent to the District Attorney, and but for The Sun's notice the prisoner might have rotted in his cell while waiting for trial.

The Tombs victims are anxious to know how many of their number have been similarly treated.

Kentucky the First of States.

Whatever else they may say of us Kentuckians—that we play cards, drink whiskey, and race horses—they have never yet been able to say of us that we are a set of pulling hyporites and liars. That the Kentucky woman is the handsomest in the world; that the Kentucky horse is the fleetest in America; and that if the Ketuckians do play cards, they play them on the square, are, we take it, indisputable propositions.

NEW YORKER. I was once a victim
To that horrid disease, catarrh.
I will tell you how I was cured,
Which was accomplished three years ago.

I was so bad that it brought on neuralgia; My head became also very dizzy, With pains in my breast and shoulder blades : My appetite very poor indeed.

I was taking fresh colds constantly; Tough slime in my throat. I was induced to iry Wolcott's Catarrh Annihilator. I used six p.mt bottles. It performed a radical cure.
